Beef Broth

One of my kids bought a prime rib roast with the bones in it. (May have taken out a second mortgage?)

I did this with the bones:

Into a large crock pot with bones, two chopped carrots, sweet onion, minced garlic, celery, black peppercorns and some bay leaves. Fill with water and run at low overnight. Strain and let cool before dividing into two cup freezer containers. You'll get about a gallon (16 cups).

Then:

Beef Broth Brown Gravy

Ingredients:

2 cups beef broth
 2 teaspoons garlic powder
 1 teaspoon onion powder
 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce (optional)
 ¼ cup cold water + 3 tablespoons cornstarch
 Salt and pepper to taste

Instructions:

Bring beef broth to a boil in a medium saucepan over medium-high heat. Stir in garlic powder, onion powder, and Worcestershire sauce (if using). In a small bowl, whisk together cold water and cornstarch until dissolved. Pour cornstarch mixture into boiling beef broth and reduce heat until thickened.

All the news I see fit to print.

Freedom of the press belongs to those who own one.

The untested mRNA Bird Flu vaccine, which isn't a vaccine, is being promoted by the lame stream media at crisis levels. "The Biden administration should be making rapid tests available and ask the FDA to authorize the already-existing H5N1 vaccine", said former Baltimore health commissioner Dr. Leana Wen on CBS news. Meanwhile, over at CNN that scarf lady and Fauci future co-defendant, Dr. Deborah Brix, was warning about the bird flu.

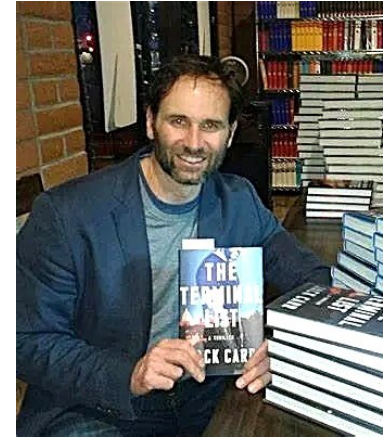

Then there is this: Researchers at Leiden University Medical Center, backed by the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation, have developed a new method of delivering vaccines using genetically modified mosquitoes as "flying vaccinators."

Please make the stupid
 people shut up!

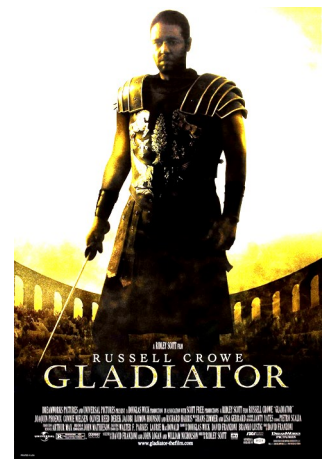

Sorry kid, it's gonna get even worse until Jan 20.

Book Report

If you haven't read any of Jack Carr's seven books, I highly recommend. I'm finishing the second time around and am very intrigued by his notes at the end of each novel featuring the James Reece character.

Given his bio, he was in a special place to comment on what we got as "news". He also recommends books to read. Discovered some very interesting explanations about our recent history from those books and added a few new authors to the authors I follow.

Gladiator, starring Russel Crowe is a great movie. Gladiator II seems to have been slapped together from outtakes from Gladiator with no discernable plot except ambiguous references to who was related to whom. Don't waste your time.

Life is short and getting shorter every day...just like me.

I don't miss the toys I gave my kids because I now have grandkids and better toys.

Looks like the CDC won't approve any medicine unless it has danced on television.

Why do congress critters have such bad luck when they try to think?

Tip for politicians: wearing a tin foil hat doesn't make you a knight in shining armor.

Next time you call your husband an idiot, remember you're the one who married him.

Maybe daylight savings time would become popular if they moved the hands forward at 4pm on a Monday.

Why are there page numbers in a dictionary? Don't we use the alphabet to find something?

Doing nothing is very hard to do. You never know when you're done.

If our Founding Fathers wanted us to care about the rest of the world, they wouldn't have declared their independence.

If Jimmy Carter was a senator, he would've still been in office? (Asking for a friend.)

Some entrepreneurs have not failed. They've just found 10,000 ways that won't work.

Everybody knows how to raise children, except the people who have them.

More schools across the country will now be equipped with automated external defibrillators (AEDs) and CPR training will be more accessible as Damar Hamlin's HEARTS Act was signed by President Biden earlier this week. Is this one of Chuck you Schumer's brain farts in anticipation of heart problems for school children who were subjected to the COVID vaccines? Schumer, and his colleagues on the Senate Judiciary Committee have also been quietly stacking the federal judiciary with liberal minded (DEI?) judges knowing they could one day fight his battle against a resurgent Trump.

Speaking about DEI: Latavion (actual name) Lewis, a contract FedEx worker is accused of ditching dozens of holiday packages in the woods to avoid working late. Contract workers get $25/hour to deliver packages that are tracked and missing packages result in claims with the driver id'd from the packages missing.

Over 100 January 6 political prisoners have come together to file what is being hailed as the largest lawsuit ever against the Department of Justice. Officially named the January 6 Restitution and Wrongful Incarceration Lawsuit, this $50 billion class action is spearheaded by Jake Lang, a January 6 prisoner who has been incarcerated for nearly four years. Schadenfreude will be a household word if Pelosi and Liz Cheney have to repay the DoJ when the J6 people win this lawsuit.

Fun times ahead from POTUS 47: A journalist for The Times, a British daily newspaper, recalled he had a chance to interview Trump #45 alongside a colleague in the Oval Office. "Our opening softball questions to try to lull Trump done, we moved on to harder ones and he began to look at a red button, mounted on a nine by three-inch wooden box. Suddenly he jabbed it, and we froze in shocked silence. The president smiled. Seconds later, a butler emerged from an Oval Office side door with an iced Diet Coke on a silver platter, and placed it in front of him," he added. Trump indeed noticed that they were surprised by the button. "You guys want one?" he asked. "Yes please Mr. President," they answered.

The return of the red button is one of several changes coming to the #47 White House.

Tidbits

(a small and particularly interesting item of gossip or information)

The U.S. Constitution, adopted in 1787, is the oldest written national constitution still in use today...at least by Republicans.

Late-night comedy hosts spent 2024 repeatedly bashing Trump and experienced another bad year as their cultural relevance and viewership continue to crash.

NC officials have confirmed that 62 members of the Pennsylvania Amish community have completed the construction of 12 tiny homes in under 48 hours. The total cost of the project was $300,000, all of which was donated by the Amish community. FEMA spent millions but we can't figure out on what.

Tesla has replaced 15,000 U.S. employees laid off earlier this year with just 2,000 H1B workers. Those US workers must have been union members?

Los Angeles County health officials are warning against feeding pets raw food after one sample had bird flu virus "detected". Watch for the FDA to extend it to all raw food, just in case, don'tcha know.

Some 175,000 people work for Mexico's smuggling cartels, making them the country's fifth-largest private employer. Biden claims them in his jobs reports?

Until next week...
