

Few countries are more enthusiastic on their way to demise than the Nordic kingdom of Denmark. Denmark is on track to implement the world's first tax on agricultural emissions, including flatulence by livestock. Yes, you read it right.

Cow and pig farts are to be taxed. Farmers will have to pay a levy of 300 kroner ($43) per ton of methane (as per carbon dioxide equivalent) on emissions from livestock including cows and pigs.

Meanwhile, John Kerry, Biden's climate czar (paid with your taxes) said "I think, personally, we're on the brink of needing to declare a climate emergency, which is what we really have and we need to get people to behave as if this really is a major transitional challenge to the whole planet, to everybody."

Maybe Kerry should move to Denmark and take Al Gore (remember him?) with him before D.O.G.E catches up with their scam and reclaims the money they got from Biden.

The Frank Report

All the news I see fit to print.
Freedom of the press belongs to those who own one.

Cats have fascinated humans for centuries. The Egyptians considered them gods while medieval Europeans considered them witches and killed them. The ghosts of those cats laughed as rats brought on the Black Plaque. Pirates are pictured with parrots on their shoulders because the cats onboard ship were too busy killing rats for that human nonsense.

Apparently, the rats have found some champions who have been doing some research on cats that goes well beyond historical facts. Here's a list of how hundreds of government bureaucrats have been spending your tax dollars:

$6.8 million dollar study by the National Science Foundation to assess what toys, foods, scents, and humans that cats prefer.

$178,000 "Catwalk" study where officials with the National Institutes of Health (NIH) "put 10 cats on a catwalk and another on a treadmill to study how they balance."

$390,000 study commissioned to answer the question, how many shakes does it take for a wet cat to dry off."

$331,000 investigation into whether cats or elephants urinate faster...it was a tie t 18 seconds.

NIH spent $1.3 million treating cats to a day at the spa with treats and classical music to see if they pooped and peed outside the litter box less."

Other studies examined the appeal of "cute kittens on the internet," whether cats could still walk on treadmills after the deletion of brain function, and how cats and mice interact when glowing in the dark. Fauci wasn't satisfied torturing Beagles?

Cats who tolerate humans learn from experience and teach their young to avoid humans until they can train them.

I am NOT making this up!

Karoline Leavitt, 27 years old and youngest in the role, will serve as White House Press Secretary.

She was his campaign press secretary to stand behind the podium in the White House briefing room. The White House briefing room holds seats for only 49 credentialed members of the press. Yet while the White House controls who is credentialed, the independent White House Correspondents' Association decides who is seated, and where.

The White House can block credentials on reporters who have openly ignored the truth.

Instead of hostile legacy media outlets, Trump could seat new social media hosts such as Megyn Kelly and Joe Rogan. The Lame Stream Media may not like it but all they can do is make them stand. They can't stop Ms. Leavitt from calling on them no matter where the LSM makes them stand in the room.

Could wind up with the "stars" of the Lame Stream Media sitting up front and Ms. Leavitt could completely ignore them.

You may remember Jim Acosta.

Trump banned him from the press room, LSM brought him back in so press secretary just ignored him resulting in his screams for attention.

Our founding fathers gave congress the mandate to create the laws. Above is a typical day in congress.

While congress critters are out raising money to get reelected, who in hell is creating all the laws, rules, regulations and mandates that, if printed out for every citizen, would destroy every tree on the planet.

There are 438 federal agencies staffed with thousands of unelected bureaucrats who have usurped the power of congress and create their own rules and regulations. The Executive Branch has the Constitutional mandate where power flows down from the President of the United States to his various department heads and agencies.

We now have unelected bureaucrats who wield more power than the President of the United States, and worse, are accountable to nobody. Trump 45 tried to implement Schedule F allowing the President to dismiss employees within the executive branch at-will with his famous "you're fired" announcement. Trump 47 and congress can take another shot at this and start using the Constitution to help eliminate these bureaucrats and their rules. You can help by contacting your congress critter with this opening paragraph: "Before I get to my complaint about you, please note that I have typed it by using my middle fingers exclusively..." That should get their attention.
