

Recipe Corner

Hard Rolls

(using the 3triple2 bread recipe)

As most things in life, time makes everything better. The 24 hours required for the base bread recipe gives you a dough you can work with to make the best hard rolls. Base recipe too large to include here so let me know if you want and I'll send. I cut the dough into irregular pieces and bake on parchment paper. Spray water during the 450 degree baking cycle and you get crunch on the outside and chewy on the inside. Great for burgers!

Birthday greetings to those who always got just one present for their birthday because it's so close to Christmas.

THE FRANK REPORT

12.22.2018

All the news I see fit to print.
Freedom of the press belongs to those who own one.

THE GREAT AWAKENING

If it's French against French...who do they surrender to?

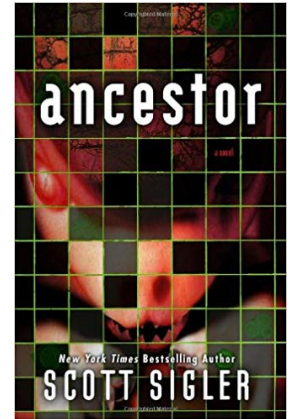

Due to public outcry, "Baby it's Cold Outside" has been changed to "Yo, Bitch, it's freezin."

I'm starting to wonder how far the media has their tongue pressed into their cheek. Surely this idiocy cannot go unnoticed by the saner members of the media. Politics has degenerated into pro-Trump and anti-Trump factions with members of the political parties unrecognizable since Republicans include swamp people and Democrats include socialists ready to destroy the Constitution and Bill of Rights. Trump can either walk on water without getting his feet wet or he doesn't know how to swim. There is no middle ground. Outrageous comments from both sides are used as click bait by the media which only encourages more of the same. Politicians like Chuck Schumer gauge success by press coverage regardless of the reporting (which is usually favorable) and that prompts additional attention grabbing comments so far from fact that he's starting to sound like Nancy Pelosi. The reason I like whatfinger.com news aggregate is the fact that they identify the biased "news" from both sides and let you decide which makes more sense. For you older folks...ever wonder how the Huntley-Brinkley report would report the news today? I think they'd be laughing too hard.

Bon Mots

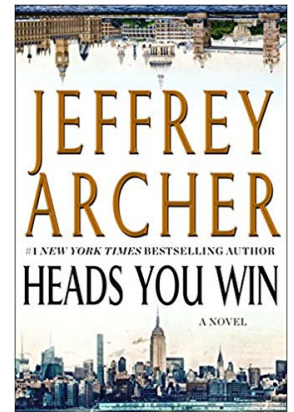

I feel like a dog in a car.

I have no idea where I'm going.

Book Report

Doesn't know how to spell siegler correctly, but he is definitely another Michael Crichton (Jurassic Park). Lots more science and characters well developed. This is middle of a trilogy.

Fascinating "what if" set in 1960's through 80's about Russia. Check this guys bio; disgraced Brit politician and jailed felon who has a string of great novels (Kane and Abel best). I usually try to find the debut novel of any author. This website makes it easy: bookseriesinorder.com I'm guessing Amazon pays them for every purchase made from the link.

UPS tracking: "Your package is in X City, USA on a truck driven by Bob and will be at your door at 2:37pm"

FedEx: "Your package is coming, you'll get it when we give it to you."

USPS: "You ordered something?"

Amazon: "We're inside your apartment."

Facebook: "We know you were just thinking about getting a toaster oven. Here are 15 ads for toaster ovens."

Spent some time driving around to various stores as an excuse to get outside. The items

I was looking for were priced higher than internet sources or not available. Add free shipping and one day delivery and I'm wondering how long the traditional brick and mortar retail will be the same in a few years.

Best Buy really impressed me as the sales people had smart phone in hand and confirmed lowest price. One even showed me a $2 savings on one item if I wanted to just go next door to Target. Customer service like that will always get me to start the shopping venture at Best Buy...smart move Mr. Schultz! My ad agency handled the press and investor relations when Dick Schultz decided to take

Best Buy public...many years ago!

The unholy alliance between the Lame Stream Media and politicians on both sides will be destroyed as the public continues to laugh at them. On the bright side, most of their younger target audience are completely ignoring them thus the reason for the infiltration of apps like Facebook and other social media. Even that audience is turning away with memes becoming the new source of political thought. Historically, we're about to come full circle as I remind the younger generation that Mark Twain and Will Rogers become the antidote for the political poison of their day.

Laughter will become an effective bleach for this cesspool.

I think I've just found the topic for my next blog article. I'll let you know when it's posted on
