

Recipe Corner

Stuffed Mushrooms

(son William taught me this one)

Slowly fry bacon until crisp. In the bacon fat, sauté garlic. Tear the stems out of the mushrooms after clipping the dried ends. Chop the bacon and some of the stems and a couple of the mushrooms into bits and add to the garlic. Add some bread crumbs to make the filling. Mix in some shredded cheese; parmesan or other similar. You can then stuff the mushrooms and place on cookie sheet. Sprinkle more cheese e.g. parmesan, blue, mozzarella, etc. Then into the pre heated oven at 350 degrees until cheese on top melts and slightly crusted over. Cool and munch.

His teacher claims a BS degree from the electoral college.

A former bartender from the Bronx is so enraged that she wants to either shut it down or demand free tuition for all future students.

Gov Cuomo suggests infanticide and higher taxes.

THE FRANK REPORT

2.16.2019 #161

All the news I see fit to print.
Freedom of the press belongs to those who own one.

Stuff that makes you say....hmmmmmm?

The outrage was directed at Bill for pretending to be a farmer.

Meanwhile...in the world of hypocrisy...

Joy Behar: The View

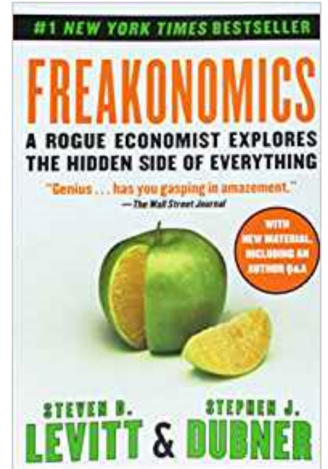

..and now they're pushing a green new deal? Maybe it's time to take their crayons away?

When are these idiots going to learn the difference between race and ethnicity. I've spelled it out for them on my blog at <http://thefrankreport.net/frogs-racism-and-the-n-word>

Bon Mots

A college education helps you to express your ignorance in scientific terms.

My friend Dr. Mike Marshall told me about this one. Fascinating mental gymnastics by Levitt (economist) captured by Dubner (writer). Levitt is a rare economist who doesn't like numbers but can read them to find some very interesting facts about abortion and a drop in crime rates, cheating by sumo wrestlers and how your real estate agent doesn't really work for you. Ordered their sequel; more fun observations reported by the numbers.

Made it through the third season but the fourth started way out in left field. Gave up. -more-

Always another project...

...that's Roselee's grandfather in a rocking chair reportedly made by one of the Malone clan. It finally made its way back to me for some TLC and some sorely needed repairs.

Three days of dowel plugs for the busted legs and lots of Gorilla glue; followed by sanding and Tung oil. I remember replacing the leather seat decades ago so added leather refresher and cleaner to the project.

Couple of days to let the Tung oil penetrate then a good buffing and it should be ready for use. I think it's made of black walnut to which, coincidentally, I'm allergic. Also have the small foot stool for it made by Roselee's Uncle in grade school.

Next project:

Electric range probably 15 years old. I bake bread 2-3 times a week as well as cookies for granddaughter Gracie. I prefer gas for cooking/baking so will have a gas line run while I install 110volt outlet.

Ordered new gas range and microwave for middle of March install. Did the internet research and ordered new direct from Samsung. Also confirmed much less cost of gas vs electric. My gas bill is less than the first year since installing tankless water heater even though installed gas heater in garage so I can enjoy my projects out there in comfort.

The Miata also loves it.

Public Safety Announcement:

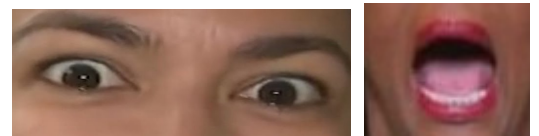

Minnesota has four major laws developed by our brilliant politicians to discourage distracted driving...and made sure our law enforcement people have the equipment they need to enforce all laws. Ironic?

Been saving wine corks for quite some time. Have a 45 gallon tub filled with them...even moved it several times. Maybe above is solution to the $10 chair (below) The Boys (and their predecessors) are slowly but surely destroying?

The Democrats are building a whole new image for themselves in preparation to the next presidential election. It's almost sad that these two images have become well known symbols:

I haven't figured out whether the Lame Stream Media is supporting these two idiots or are they making fun of them. I'm sure you recognize them because of that support.

Think about that...

GPA/DAD/UNCLE/ETC

