

In 2020, Jeff Wallace joined USAA as chief financial officer from Bank of America, where he served as CFO of consumer banking. USAA describes Wallace as a "passionate advocate for diversity and inclusion."

In 2023, Jeffrey Bashore joined USAA as senior VP, bank fraud operations.

Then this happened:

John Eastman, an attorney who worked with former President Donald Trump, has been debanked by both Bank of America and USAA. USAA declined to explain to me...a member for 62+ years...why they would or even could "debank" someone. I then "debanked" USAA by closing all financial accounts and cancelled three insurance policies. To do so, I started with an hour long telephone conversation that spread over seven USAA employees who tried to figure out what to do with a member "debanking" them. I've since have had a hilarious exchange of emails and snail mail with USAA as they continued to bill me for the premiums for the cancelled insurance. Now a letter from Jeff Bashore informs me that he has investigated a credit card fraud report (I made two years ago!) and was issuing a check to correct the charges. That amount is $1.44 (but wait, there's more) he included $1.04 for my loss of use of the funds and reported it to the IRS as income.

All the news I see fit to print.

Freedom of the press belongs to those who own one.

A family says they were "forbidden" from holding a funeral for their son in 2020 while Minnesota Gov. Tim Walz attended a 500-person memorial for George Floyd.

Gov. Walz transformed the purpose of education in Minnesota. Academic achievement is no longer the primary goal. Instead, education focus is transforming the students' values, attitudes, and beliefs into the woke worldview of DEI.

MN may vote for him
just to keep him the hell out of the state?

Lame Stream Media has started the hysteria about the monkeypox pandemic coming to a neighborhood near you...just in time for the 2024 election cycle.

Danish drugmaker Bavarian Nordic is poised to begin large-scale production of its monkeypox vaccine. The company's rapid response comes in the wake of the World Health Organization's (WHO) declaration of a global health emergency concerning the monkeypox outbreak.

The rest of the story...

Shares in Bavarian Nordic, whose vaccine against monkey pox has been licensed since 2019, rose nearly eight percent on the Copenhagen Stock Exchange following the WHO announcement. This followed a 12 percent increase the week before the WHO announcement. (Pelosi must be playing that stock market too?)

A recent surge in lawsuits alleges major platforms like Facebook and TikTok manipulate users' brains, leading to addiction and potential harm. The US Surgeon General proposed warning labels similar to cigarettes. This, along with proposed legislation concerning user data, underscores the need to scrutinize how social media shapes young minds. These legal battles go beyond individual cases, sparking a landmark discussion in digital consumer rights and the urgent need for regulation and even more income for the lawyers?

The World Health Organization warns that the monkeypox virus is a global public health emergency, sounding its highest possible alarm. Most of the cases are among men who have sex with men.
