Ice Cream

Grandson Mr. Z and Mom Margaret showed up with four selections of ice cream from Culver's. Mr. Z shudders when I mention smoothies so he offered this great counterpoint. Granddaughter Gracie works at a local ice cream parlor and brought me my favorite butter pecan. Maybe a great compromise for these not so subtle comments would be to include ice cream in my morning smoothies? If you're wondering if I stay healthy with dinner, here's a typical menu:

Salad with cherry tomatoes from my garden

Baked a potato covered in olive oil and kosher salt; then added sweet onion bits, sour cream and butter

Fresh corn on the cob boiled in milk and butter

Homemade bread

½ pound Sirloin strip steak fried in butter and garlic

Half bottle of cabernet sauvignon

Then I get my exercise by cleaning the kitchen and loading the dishwasher. It usually looks like a bomb went off but I have fun.

*All the news I see fit to print.
Freedom of the press belongs to those who own one.*

One of my every day gadgets that fascinates my grand-kids. Yes, that's a real Shaeffer fountain pen that still works. Note the white dot on the cap...send it to Shaeffer and they will rejuvenate at no cost due to the lifetime guarantee. Tip: if anyone borrows your pen, hold on to the cap and you'll always get it back.

Paid $10 to hang this on the wall. Useful when I had a landline for the house. Have to explain to grandkids that houses used to have a unique phone number just like an address. Less than 50% of homes have land-lines. It does come in handy when explaining the meaning of "hang up the phone". Extra credit for dial vs push button. And there were even shared party lines.

Lord we're getting old!

Way back when: we used to teach our kids to sit for a spell and watch the world go by and not worry about which bathroom we should use or even why that would be a major problem.

Bill! Sit...stay!

Today:

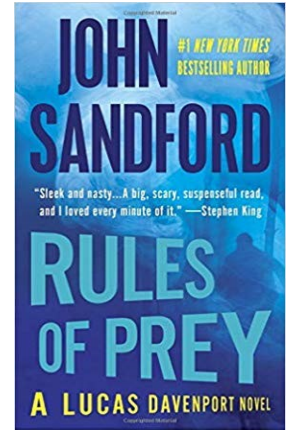

We could enroll our kids in the Antifa terror group, funded by George Soros, and teach them to reject everything that has made this country great. Not a lot of difference between their smile or smirk as the Lame Stream Media buys into the scam.

Bon Mots

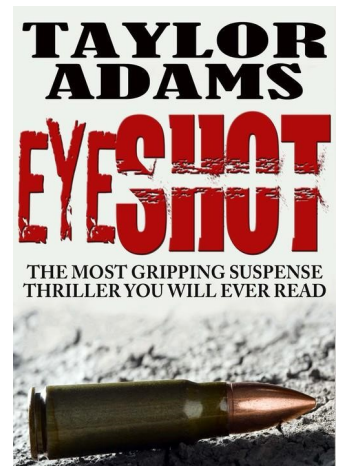

I want you to know that someone cares.

Not me.

But maybe someone.

Another debut novel I hadn't read (1989). It's a first edition with jacket cover. Daughter Mary has been attending Sanford's book signings. Maybe I can get her to have Sanford sign this one for my collection? Lucas Davenport is quintessential detective.

When it comes to spooky, Stephen King is Dr. Seuss when compared to Taylor Adams. His subsequent books are even gooder. Don't miss this author. Eyeshot is a debut.

In summary...

Nadler is the sad clown.

Nancy is the expert at clown makeup.

Trump is the ringmaster?

I have been close to anger about the Democrat's focus on obstruction. Then I remembered:

"Pity is the greatest form of revenge"

"...and then I told Chuck and Nancy: someday, all of this will be yours..."

Students at Union Theological Seminary (affiliated with neighboring Columbia University in Upper Manhattan) prayed to a display of plants set up in the chapel of the school, prompting the institution to issue a statement explaining the practice as many on social media mocked them. "Today in chapel, we confessed to plants," the nation's oldest independent seminary declared Tuesday on Twitter. "Together, we held our grief, joy, regret, hope, guilt and sorrow in prayer; offering them to the beings who sustain us but whose gift we too often fail to honor. What do you confess to the plants in your life?"

BTW: this is how they store their bibles.

Democrat's economy

Trump's economy

Jeffrey Epstein? Who's that?

Amazing how fast he disappeared from the Lame Stream Media.

POTUS speech at the UN is not to be missed. It's a wake up call for the rest of the world that we are no longer their piggy bank nor their 911 source.

Delivered in a very low key manner...reminds me of how you really paid attention to your parents when they spoke slowly and softly.

The UN audience was dead silent as reality hit.

Coverage by the Lame Stream Media was totally zero. There were click bait nuggets throughout the speech but I could find a link only at the news aggregate that is what Drudge should have become. Some of the search engines will not link, that's how powerful this speech was.

Whatfinger.com
