

In my town, Farmington, MN, door to door salesmen are required to obtain a license and show an ID if they sell door to door. The city's police department makes this sign available for your front door that prohibits any peddler or solicitor from knocking on your door even if they have a license...City code 3-18-2.

However...(you knew that was coming)...the rules exempt any political door knocker. If they ignore the sign, I open the door, confirm they are political door knockers and say:

"I was about to go to the bathroom. How much time do you need to tell me how wonderful your candidate is?"

If I had known growing old was this much fun, I would have done it sooner.

I've attached a copy of the notice you can print out and tape to your front door.

Chinese criminal gangs with links to the CCP have built an illegal cannabis empire in Siskiyou County, California. They're generating $2 billion a year in revenues and criminal growers are now 20% of the population. Gavin Newsom is doing nothing to stop them.

All the news I see fit to print.

Yes I am teasing those liberals who find my website. They certainly don't subscribe to the newsletter but the FBI might be passing it on to them. I do have one FBI agent subscriber. I call him my guardian agent.

The battle for artificial intelligence is heating up. Trump says the government should stay out of it and not try to pass laws that would stifle innovation. He must know about this:

The Locomotive Act 1865, commonly known as the Red Flag Act, was the British law that mandated self-propelled vehicles on public roads be preceded by a pedestrian. This individual was required to walk at least 60 yards ahead of the vehicle, carrying a red flag during the day and a red lantern at night to warn horse-drawn traffic of the approaching automobile. France and Germany's automotive industries grew rapidly while Britain's stagnated, the argument that the law was costing Britain its competitive edge became impossible to ignore. Sound familiar? Vermont (1894) and Pennsylvania (1896) had similar laws with speed limits established at 2mph in town and 4 mph in the country later raised to 14 mph.

Check the note at bottom of right hand column.

Texas law now requires drunk drivers to pay for child support if they kill a child's parent or guardian. Gotta love Texas!

Kansa new law just invalidated over 1,000 drivers licenses and birth certificates of transgenders who changed them.

BTW: any chance states could fix the roads we drive on we were already taxed to fix so we're not causing damage to the cars we are taxed to drive which we bought with income that was taxed and park in driveways of our homes that are taxed in ways we can't even count? Just saying...

Barack Obama, Kamala Harris, Pete Buttigieg, Hakeem Jeffries, and Ro Khanna have begun warning that AI is advancing fast, could be dangerous, and may require international treaties or regulatory oversight or a development moratorium or even a full-on government shut down. When Democrats unite over same talking points at the same time, I'm guessing it's time to ignore the "danger" of artificial intelligence and the anonymous coordination of objections to data centers and keep government out of the way of progress.

Trump calls AI risks a 'hoax,' says there is a 'sick conspiracy' against AI and data centers.

A data center is planned for Farmington, Minnesota, known as the Farmington Technology Park. The project is being developed on 343 acres of land that includes the former Fountain Valley Golf Course and other properties.

The proposed development involves building up to 12 data center buildings and two administrative buildings, spanning more than 2.5 million square feet. At full buildout, the project is estimated to cost $5 billion. The Farmington City Council and Planning Commission have approved the final plat and planned unit development. The city's planning manager initially cited 273 employees at full buildout. The jobs would include IT technicians, electricians, HVAC technicians, security, and engineers, with an average salary around $120,000/year.

Color me shocked that there is a "coalition" objecting to the project with claims of damage not yet substantiated.

curmudgeon quotes

I'm not really mean. When I tell someone to go to hell, I still hope they arrive safely.

Don't think before you speak. That way you'll be surprised by what comes out of your mouth.

What would happen if Trump banned sales of guns to transpeople?

If you think everything is expensive, maybe you're just poor?

Men Can Get Pregnant, but They Can't Have an Opinion About Postpartum Depression Because They Can't Get Pregnant. Wait! What?

Getting older wouldn't be so bad if the world wasn't getting so weird in the process.

Teach a man to fish and he'll eat for life. Give him someone else's fish and he'll vote for you.

"If you ban abortions, women will get them illegally." Now do guns.

If you love someone, let them go. If they come back, that means nobody else wanted them either.

Congratulations. Your joke was so funny HR wants to hear it.

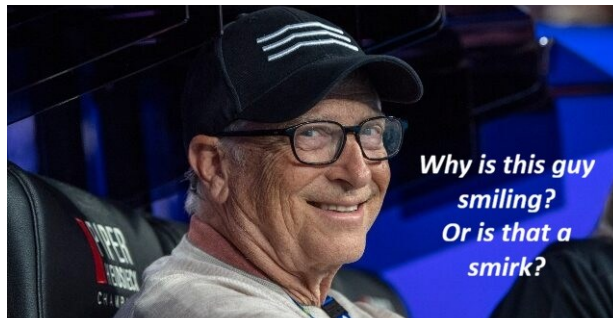

They killed Charlie Kirk because he was "extreme". Wait until they find out Charlie Kirk was the nice guy.

I wouldn't object to flock cameras...at polling stations.

My dad whopping our butts was better than mom getting a note from her doctor to kill us.

No hurricanes since Trump changed the name to Gulf of America. We'll take the win and run with it!

Climate change is coming. It's called winter.

Or is that a smirk?

Bill Gates and the Gates Foundation have pledged $1 billion to be spent over the next two years "to improve global access to artificial intelligence". Remember when Bill got involved with COVID?

Here's a tale of two viruses:

One created in 2020 (Covid @ Wuhan Labs).
The other created in 2026 (AI @ Frontier Labs).

One was molecular (covid), the other digital (AI).

Both man made. Both promoted by media.
Both escape a lab. Both create fear/panic.
Both require experts to explain. Both introduce mitigation measures. Both end with govt control rules.
COVID Passport / Digital ID

Trust the medical scientists.
Trust the computer scientists.

Both timed to coincide w/ critical elections.

Fool me once, but not twice.

Last week I mentioned the anchor baby problem. Here's an example: A single American mother signed up to be a surrogate after seeing an Instagram ad promising $120,000. The agency told her the intended parent was a single father expanding his family. The intended father, leaked documents later showed, was Xu Bo, the reclusive Chinese video-game billionaire whose company has already confirmed a surrogacy operation on U.S. soil numbering more than 100 children who can vote, hold federal jobs and at age 21 sponsor family members. Agencies market the arrangement as cheaper than the EB-5 investor visa.

I wonder if his kids will be smarter than those in California. On the Smarter Balanced exam for 2024-2025, only 57 percent of California 11th graders met the English standard. Math sat at 30.5 percent. Those numbers ticked up from the 2021-2022 floor of 54.8 percent and 27 percent. They remain worse than before the lockdowns. But wait...there's more: Students applying to the University of California with a 4.0 or better jumped from 52,989 in 2015 to 103,138 for the class of 2025. The spike sharpened during the COVID years, when classrooms went online and standards went wherever the administration needed them to go. The vast majority of those applicants are California residents. Apparently, a diploma and a 4.0 GPA now describe a feeling, not a skill.
